Mr. Roosevelt was placed in nomination by Timothy L. Ansberry, a former representative from Ohio, who sat as a Cox delegate in the District of Columbia delegation. Seconds sprang from all parts of the hall, and although Roosevelt was not formally nominated until well after the business of nominations was taken up there was no doubt about it, and never at any time was there any opposition. The seconding of his nomination by Governor Smith of Missouri, of the Tammany delegation, clinched it.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, chairman of the convention, was appointed chairman of the committee to notify Governor Cox of his nomination and Chairman Homer S. Cummings of the Democratic national committee, was appointed chairman of the committee to notify Roosevelt. After its session of 44 ballots, the convention reassembled at noon to finish its work. There was at first a delay utilized by the Cox managers to hear from the governor about his wishes on the vice presidential nomination. E. H. Moore of Youngstown, O., who managed the governor's fight, let it be known that Cox was willing to leave the selection of his running mate to the convention. With that the forces easily and quickly coalesced and after Roosevelt's nomination applauded an appreciation of him by his chief, Secretary Josephus Daniels.

During the closing moments of the convention the usual formal resolution affecting the national committee and the convention organization were adopted with a resolution expressing the thanks and appreciation of the convention to the city of San Francisco.

Elated as a boy of his nomination by acclamation today as vice presidential candidate of the Democratic party, Franklin D. Roosevelt's first act on hearing the news from the hall was to send a telegram of greeting to Governor Cox, the presidential candidate.

Party is United
Chairman Homer Cummings of the Democratic National Committee said: "The convention reached its result in a truly Democratic manner. The forces, purposes and opinions, represented by the delegates had full play and reached an uncontrollable result. It was a long, hard contest but it leaves no scars and the candidates will have the united support of the party."

"San Francisco redeemed every promise that was made in her behalf and in many respects far exceeded our expectations. There were some who doubted the wisdom of holding a national convention on the Pacific coast. Actual experience has removed all doubt."

Lionel Barrymore repeats in the screen version of "The Copperhead" striking impression which he made in this great drama of Civil War times when it was produced as a stage play. The picture opened at the Central theatre Friday and Saturday and the Eagle theatre Sunday and Monday and is well worth the attention of every admirer of really fine photoplays.

Augustus Thomas' story has been given a sympathetic interpretation on the screen and a setting remarkably realistic in its detail that adds considerably to the enjoyment of the picture. Infinite pains have been taken to reproduce the atmosphere of the time and locale of "The Copperhead," particularly in the Mexican Civil Wars episodes. The result has been most happy and a credit to Charles Maigne who directed the film.

Lionel Barrymore brings to the role of Milt Shanks, the hero, the same fine qualities as an actor and penetrating understanding of the character that scored so emphatically in the stage version. The story of Milt's self-sacrifice while performing a delicate and most important mission for President Lincoln is particularly timely in these post-war days. The picture is a Paramount Artcraft.
